

Rev. J. Wesley to Henry Moore.

Manchester, July 17, 1789.

Dear Henry, I came hither yesterday, and purpose to spend most of the next week at Otley. I had forgot when I wrote last, that our dear friend, Mr. Atlay was in London. If he is there still, you cannot be so unkind, as to leave him behind you: so that you can only send S. Rankin and George Whitfield, to bear us company at Leeds. But if he is gone to Yorkshire, you may go thither too. I am your affectionate friend and brother, J. Wesley.
